SYNAPSIS 1988

Clifford Glenn Dorf

The Class of 1988 dedicates this yearbook to the memory of our friend and classmate, Clifford Glenn Dorf. His desire and determination coupled with his kind, gentle manner would have made him a fine osteopathic physician. We share his loss with family and friends but feel that his spirit lives on in the hearts of those he touched.

The Class of 1988

"He's the best physican who knows the worthlessness of most medicines."

Franklin

62978

"A specialist is a doctor who trains his patients to become ill only during office hours"

"The physician is only nature's assistant"

Galen

PRIMETIME
ENTERTAINERS

"I wonder why ye can always read a doctor's bill an ye niver can read his purscription"

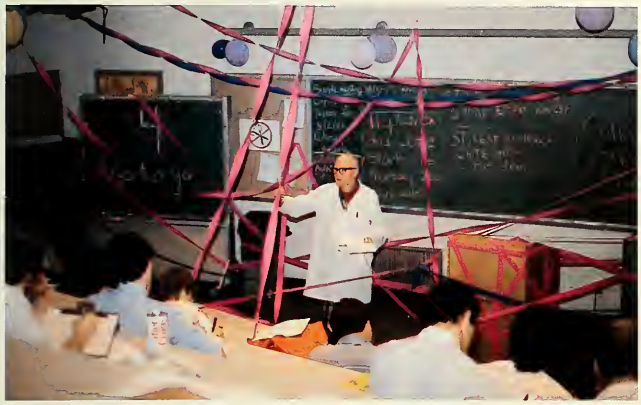
Dunne

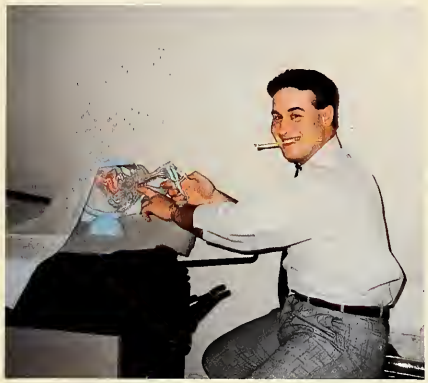


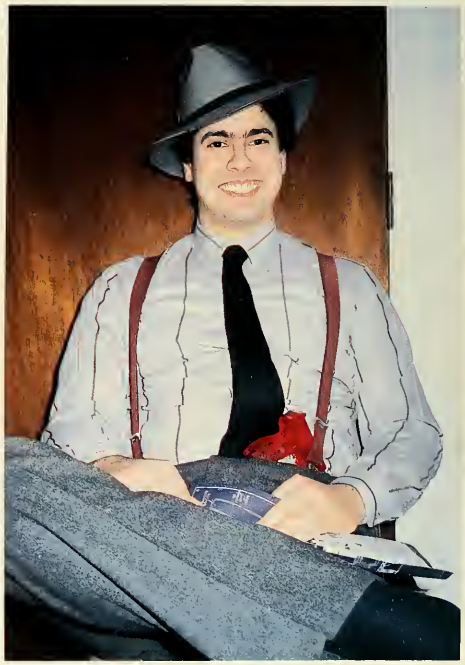
"The physician can not prescribe by letter, he must feel the pulse"

Seneca

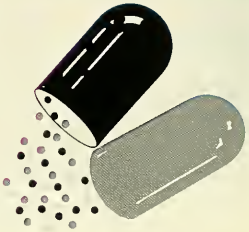
"One of the chief objects of medicine is to save us from the natural consequences of our vices and follies."

Menken





"The doctor must have at his command a ready wit, as dourness is repulsive both to the healthy and the sick"
Hippocrates



DOCTORS

They work with herbs
and penicillin.
They work with gentleness
and the scalpel.
They dig out the cancer,
close an incision
and say a prayer
to the poverty of the skin.
They are not Gods
though they would like to be;
they are only a human trying to fix up a human.
Many humans die.
They die like the tender,
palpitating berries
in November.
But all along the doctors
remember:
First do no harm.
They would kiss it if it would heal.
It would not heal.

If the doctors cure
then the sun sees it.
If the doctors kill
then the earth hides it.
The doctors should fear arrogance
more than cardiac arrest.
If they are too proud,
and some are,
then they leave home on horseback
but God returns them on foot.

"In the matter of Physical Diagnosis, greed is not a sin; it is a virtue. There can never be enough hearts and lungs to teach a Doctor his business. Do not rely upon the x-ray machine, the electrocardiograph, or the laboratory to tell you what your hands, eyes, and ears can find out, lest your senses atrophy from disease. The machine does not exist that can take the place of a divining physician. The physical examination affords the opportunity to touch your patient. It gives the patient the opportunity to be touched by you. In this exchange, messages are sent from one to the other that, if your examination is performed with honesty and humility, will cause the divining powers of the Augurs to be passed on to you - their last heir."

THE LOTTERY

Trust me, I'm a doctor - she's dead!

THE STETHOSCOPE

Through it
over young women's abdomens tense,
I have heard the sound of creation and, in a dead man's chest, the silence before creation began.
Should I
pray therefore? Hold this instrument in awe and aloft a procession of banners?
Hang this thing in the interior of a cold, mushroom-dark church?
Should I
kneel before it, chant an apophthegm from a small text? Mimic priest or rabbi, the swaying noises of religious men?
Never! Yet I could praise it.
I should
by doing so celebrate my own ears, by praising them praise speech at midnight
when men become philosophers;
laughter of the sane and insane,
. . night cries
of injured creatures, wide-eyed or blind;
moonlight sonatas on a needle;
lovers with doves in their throats; the wind traveling from where it began.

- Dannie Abse

Does aspirin seem to help?
Does it feel better after eating?
Can you tolerate greasy foods?
Does it get relieved when you lie down?
Is it worse in the morning or evening?
Put your finger on the spot that hurts most.
Does it come and go or is the pain constant?
Does it radiate through to your back or shoulder?
Does it crumple you in half when the pain comes?
Do you feel like a small animal is nibbling inside you?
Do you wake in the morning crowned with a halo of pain?
Have you come to depend on the pain to keep you alive?
Do you remember a time before birth when the rhythm of the universe was your second heart beat?
Do you remember how green the grass used to be?
Do you remember a time when you remembered no pain?
When you were young did you torture animals?
Were you faithful to your first lover?
Are you afraid of the darkness?
Tell me about the pain?

1987 CURREN

JUDICIAL CONTESTANTS — Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork was rejected by the U.S. Senate, and the second nominee, Douglas Ginsburg, withdrew under fire.

SILVER SAILS — After defeating Australia to bring the America's Cup back home in February, San Diego skipper Dennis Conner waves an American flag while clutching the silver cup at a parade in his hometown.

WINNING STREAK — West German Steffi Graf, 17, displays the French Tennis Open cup after she defeated top-seeded American opponent Martina Navratilova.

MATERIAL GIRL — With a movie in the works, Madonna is still one of the nation's top entertainers. Her marriage with actor Sean Penn puts them both in the limelight often.

DAZZLING — Whitney Houston's "Whitney" marks the first album by a female to debut at No. 1 on the Billboard Album Chart. "I Wanna Dance With Somebody" and "So Emotional" are two of her number-one hit singles.

VIOLA VICTORY — The Minnesota Twins beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 in the seventh game of the World Series. Frank Viola was named most valuable player in the Series.

T EVENTS 1988

ROUND TWO — Former Senator Gary Hart (D-Colo.), with his wife Lee, re-entered the 1988 presidential race. Hart withdrew earlier after reports of a sea cruise with Donna Rice caused a scandal.

"LITE" METAL — The top-selling album of 1987, Bon Jovi's "Slippery When Wet," sold 11 million copies, the largest-selling album ever in the metal category.

TINY HEROINE — Eighteen-month-old Jessica McClure held on for two and a half days until rescuers freed her from the 22-foot abandoned well in Midland, Texas.

FAREWELL

FINAL BOW — Fred Astaire, 88, was called the "greatest dancer in the world." His innovative, elegant style graced the screen with many partners, including Ginger Rogers and Rita Hayworth.

SHOWBIZ — The consummate showman, Liberace, 67, was famous the world over for glitzing up his concerts with furs, rhinestones and glowing candelabras.

HOLLYWOOD LEGEND — Director and actor John Houston, 81, acted in 21 films and directed 41, including "The Maltese Falcon" and "The African Queen."

Stephen P. Anthony, D.O.

As I reflect on these past four years, I begin to realize how many people have made this quest possible which ended in June. God gave me life, the ability to think, the desire and strength to help others, and the will to pursue a course with the talents that He has bestowed on me. My family (Dad, Mom, Fred, Sue, Keith, Kevin, Grandma's Anthony and Von Hoven) never ceased in their encouragement of my goal to become a physician. Sheryl, always knew that the end would soon come and gave me a wallet card for inspiration that I carried for these four years which reads: "Obstacles are what you see when you take your eyes off the road." Thank you everyone! I love you all so much!

"In the beginning . . .

With gratitude I dedicate this page to:
My parents, Veronica and Vincent Attinello. Their example of what can be accomplished through hard work has been my inspiration throughout life.
My husband, Bill, loving father who made so many sacrifices while starting his own practice so that I would succeed.
My husband's parents, Rose and Edward Dunleavy. Their tireless support sustained me at times when I felt overwhelmed.
Our family friend, Bruce Van Loan. I shared with him my first thoughts of wanting to be a Physician. He told me he would help. He kept his word.
Without them I would not have been able to complete my education while helping to raise our six year old son, Sean, and give birth to our six month old daughter, Ashley Rose.
I can only say, I love you all.

LORD, let me be willing to give my time and my attention to all those who come to me in need . . .

Let me be sensitive to the concerns of those who trust me and dedicated to providing a better quality of life for those who depend upon me . . .

Let my heart never grow indifferent to my patient's fears or hardened to their suffering . . .

Let my life be lived in the light of your wisdom, in the strength of your presence, and in the mercy of your love . . .

And let me never forget that I am no more than an instrument of Your divine healing . . .

To my wonderful family - Linda for the example to follow and for all those "few extra dollars for pizza."
Joe - for being such a great role model.
Donna - for all the "care packages" over the years.
Sandra - for the greatest display of courage I have ever witnessed. You have taught me to never take life for granted.

To my dear friends - To Lisa, my study buddy. Attached at the hip, Lis. You made the endless days and nights much shorter!
To Kellie & Lori - Beware of those glare days, girls.
To my roomie, Z - For putting up with me.
To Mr. B. - LIH buddy!

A friend is a person who is for you always . . . He wants nothing from you except that you be yourself. He is the one being with whom you can feel safe. With him you can utter your heart, its badness and its goodness. Like the shade of a great tree in the noonday heat is a friend. Like the home port with your country's flag flying after a long journey is a friend. A friend is an impregnable citadel of refuge in the strife of existence. It is he that keeps alive your faith in human nature, that makes you believe that it is a good universe. He is the antidote to despair, the elixir of hope, the tonic for depression . . . THE BRIDGE

An old man going a lone highway came in the evening, cold and gray,
To a chasm vast, both deep and wide.
The old man crossed in the twilight dim, the swollen stream was as naught to him; But he stopped when safe on the farther side and built a bridge to span the tide.
"Old man, ," said a fellow pilgrim near, "You are wasting your strength in labor here; Your journey will end with the closing day, you never again will pass this way.
You've crossed the chasm deep and wide, why build you this bridge at eventide?"
The laborer lifted his old gray head, "Good friend, in the path I have come," he said, "There followeth after me today a youth whose feet must pass this way.
This chasm which has been naught to me to that young man may a pitfall be.
He, too, must cross in the twilight dim. Good friend, I am building this bridge for him."

This is worship: to serve mankind and to minister to the needs of the people. Service is prayer. A physician ministering to the sick, gently, tenderly, free from prejudice and believing in the solidarity of the human race, he is giving praise.

- my parents, who unselfishly gave up their country and their families in the hope for a better life for their children;
- my mother, who has guided and influenced me in ways she will never know and who showed me how to find happiness in the smaller things that life brings you - to the memory of a truly beautiful person;
- my brother and sister for support and encouragement when I needed it most;

First, to my wife Eva - This is an accomplishment for both of us to share in. It would not have been possible without your constant love and unselfish support.
To Bryan and those yet unnamed - Your lives put all this work in perspective and makes life so much more enjoyable.
To my family - Your support has been a beacon of light. I hope I can live up to all your expectations.
To Mom and Dad - I am so proud that Eva and I will be following in your footsteps.
To all our friends who we have made during these last four years - Thanks for being there for us when we needed you. Even though we will be separated my miles, Eva and I will never forget you. Thanks.

I suppose I should use these few lines to say something prophetic to my fellow colleagues but I will not. For we all have had similar experiences, and there are probably very few thoughts I could relay that haven't been circling around in each one of your heads over the past four years. But I do have one reflection to make and that is, if at any time in your career you become a mental basket case, dont be too proud to seek professional help.

I would first like to thank God for entrusting me with this awesome responsibility, and I hope that my work is in turn pleasing to him. Then to Mom, Dad, John, Sis, Gen, Judy, Ame, Jill and Tommy, I love you all dearly, you all have given me such incredible joy and support. What more can I say except you are majorly happening. Finally, special thanks to my Philadelphia family.

It has been a time of changes, that's for sure - meeting new people, seeing things in a different way, learning more than humans should be allowed. But it's also been a time when things have remained the same - family and friends who could always be counted on. It is easier to look forward to the future knowing the changes in the past have been for the better. Thanks to everyone who has been a part of it all.

No greater opportunity or obligation can fall the lot of a human being than to be a physician. In the care of the suffering he needs technical skill, scientific knowledge, and human understanding. He who uses these with courage, humility and wisdom will provide a unique service for his fellow man and will build an enduring edifice of character within himself. The physician should ask of his desyiny no more than this, and he should be content with no less.

Love is the music that two hearts hear,
the magical promise that each holds dear,
the warming smile,
the tender touch,
the glance that says
"you mean so much."

Love is the joy that two hearts share,
that makes each moment
precious and rare;
it's comfortable silence
and laughter too;
Love is a dream

Concerning Medicine:
"The best of our popular physicians are the ones that do the least harm. But, unfortunately some poison their patients with mercury, while others purge or bleed them to death. There are some who have learned so much that their learning has driven out of them all common sense. There are others who care a great deal more for their own profit than for the health of their patients. Medical science may be acquired by learning, but medical wisdom is the gift of God"

It is difficult to express in words my mixed emotions concerning my graduation from PCOM. The first two years went by ever so slowly, however, the last two years absolutely flew. It seems like only yesterday that I was planning to move from Arizona to Philadelphia so that I could attend medical school. This has proven to be one of my best decisions-both professionally and personally as well. Attending PCOM has certainly been dificult and at times a stressful undertaking, and I feel priviledged to graduate from there. Now is the time to look to the future and although I don't know what is in store for me, I do feel assured that I can handle whatever situations present themselves to me and I look forward to the challenge of practicing medicine.

It wasn't that long ago I graduated from Pharmacy School, completing a program I would have never dreamed of completing five years earlier. Life during those years was made a lot easier because of the strong family support rendered by my wife.

It is now seven years later and I am blessed with three beautiful daughters and have accomplished an even greater honor in life. The past four years in medical school have indeed been very difficult with much of the needed support defaulting. It appeared on more than one occassion that the goal of completing medical school was unrealistic and far beyond our reach. It was only with my wife's continued support, loving devotion, encouragement, selflessness, sacrifice, and belief in me, that I was able to successfully complete the program. Perhaps the greatest accomplishment is that we all have our good health, sanity (believe it or not), and a strong appreciation for what we have done.

I therefore would like to dedicate my degree to my wonderful wife and children and can only wish that my classmates are as fortunate and blessed with their lives as I am with mine.

Incident On a Bridge, by Kerry Livgren

It began in the underground, with visions of light and sound
The music revealing the deepest passion
Around us a river raged, still I knew that the scene was staged
Awaiting the consequence, I don't believe in accidents
It's all too real, all the things we feel
A-s the years go by, things intensify
And I know, for each life there is a reason
And I know, for each life there is a season
Now the bridge leads on to a brighter dawn, it's waiting for me
We were tied by a bond of fate, in our hearts we could feel the weight Carried along by the winds of fortune
The outcome was never known, and our purpose was never shown
'Til everything fell in place, the words on the wall we could not erase
Each piece is arranged, the puzzle's complete
Victory's taste is so bittersweet
No regrets for the time that was lost
For it all comes out in the end
A-nd the prize is worth all the tears that it cost
For the stairway you ascend
Drawing us near, it's where we belong
The world has a lot to give, but it's worthless if you don't live
And life only comes from the one who made it
When I look back and see the plan, when I retrace the race we ran
The course was so clear and true
Each bridge that we crossed led me straight to you

Two roads diverged in a wood, and Dust as we are, the immortal spirit grows

Like harmony in music; there is a dark
Inscrutable workmanship that reconciles
Discordant elements, makes them cling together
In one society. How strange that all
The terrors, pains, and early miseries,
Regrets, vexatioins, lassitudes interfused
Within my mind, should e'er have borne a part,
And that a needful part, in making up
The calm existance that is mine when I am worthy of myself!

What good is it if a man gains the whole world, yet forfeits his soul?
What is more, I consider everything a loss compared to the suprassing greatness of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord, for whose sake I have lost all things. I consider them rubbish that I Might gain Christ.
I am not ashamed of the gospel because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes, first for the Jew, then for the Gentile.
However I consider my life worth nothing to me if only I may finish the race, and complete the task the Lord Jesus has given me, the task of testifying to the gospel of God's grace.

The fountains mingle with the river
And the rivers with the ocean;
The winds of heaven mix forever
With a sweet emotion;
Nothing in the world is single;
All things by a law devine
In one spirit meet and mingle.
Why not I with thine?
See the mountains kiss high heaven,
And the waves clasp one another;
No sister-flower would be forgiven
If it disdained its brother;
And the sunlight clasps the earth,
And the moonbeams kiss the sea;
What are all these kissings worth
If thou kiss not me?

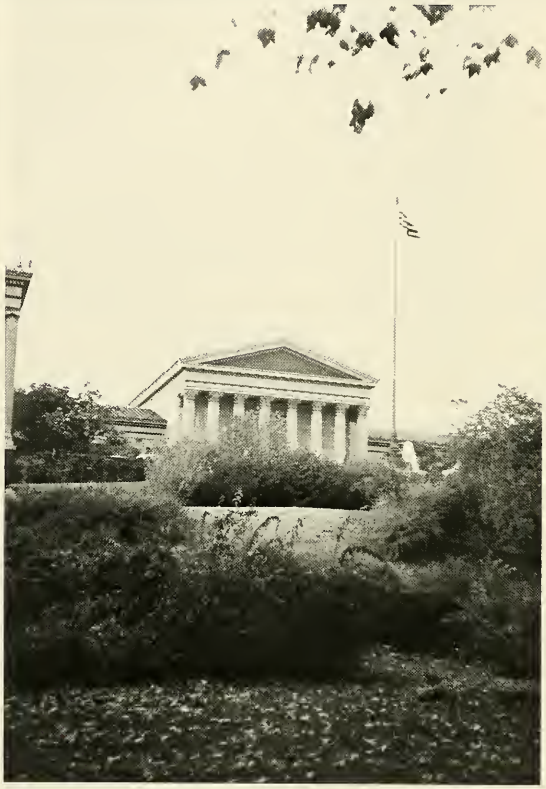
"It is not the critic who counts, not the man who points out where the strong man stumbled or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who errs and comes up short again and again; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, and spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement; and who at worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly; so that his place shall never be with those timid souls who know neither defeat nor victory!"

F.D. Roosevelt



"You cannot separate passion from pathology any more than you can separate a person's spirit from his body. Think of a particular person's spirit and, Presto! it is immediately incorporated. It has the size and shape of his body. The flesh is the spirit thickened. "Tomorrow you are an intern. You will work both night and day. You will be tired, I know, and I don't want any more of that kind of tired. An intern, like a poet, is at the disposal of his night. The more one drinks of the night, the more one thirsts for the light of day. This is as true for the doctor as it is for the insomniac. Still, there is something to be said for working at night in a hospital. The external glare of daytime is gone, and one is permeated by a wave of darkness. Now the ritual of healing is more naturally practiced. For so many years I have been patrolling these night corridors with the lamplight creeping just ahead from room to room, illuminating wounds that are faces, faces that are wounds. As though I were a sentry pacing out the border between home and a wild country. You must remember when you are tired and it is late at night, when the patients ask whether you are a real doctor or an intern, that it is at night when most people make love. It is night that dismantles the barricade to the heart."

EPILOGUE

Now, after many years of caring for the sick,
I sometimes think on how it all began and how I undertook the ancient craft that had its origin in chant and rite, in tribal shamans, augurs, oracles, and priests,
apothecaries, alchemists, and quacks.
This is the lineage I lived each day in varied acts some men are pleased to call a science.

God has been very good to me in granting some small feeling for my art, for untried knowledge is a fickle friend.
A current fact is often next year's myth since what we "know" is sometimes less than true, while what we need to know compounds itself, accumulates at rates of usury
such as to beggar us, our mouths agape.

The years bring obsolescence to us all.
An old man values as patina
what is rust and crumble at his age;
the pride of old achievement lasts too long,
and art, unaided, makes for charlatans.

To blend a timeless craft with knowledge is supreme; then wisdom slowly grows with time, like coral, quietly beneath the waves, builds islands in a far-horizoned sea.

OSTEOPATHIC OATH

I do hereby affirm my loyalty to the profession I am about to enter.

I will be mindful always of my great responsibility to preserve the health and the life of my patients, to retain their confidence and respect both as a physician and a friend who will guard their secrets with scrupulous honor and fidelity, to perform faithfully my professional duties, to employ only those methods of treatment consitant with good judgement and with my skill and ability, keeping in mind always nature's laws and the body's inherent capacity for recovery.

I will be ever vigilant in aiding in the general welfare of the community, sustaining its laws and institutions, not engaging in those practices which will in any way bring shame or discredit upon myself or my profession. I will give no drugs for deadly purposes to any person, though it be asked of me.

I will endeavor to work in accord with my colleagues in a spirit of progressive cooperation, and never by word or by act cast imputations upon them of their righful practices.

I will look with respect and esteem upon all those who have taught me my art. To my college I will be loyal and strive always for its best interests and for the interests of the students who will come after me. I will be ever alert to further application of basic biologic truths to the healing arts and to develop the principles of osteopathy which were first enunciated by Andrew Taylor Still.

HIPPOCRATIC OATH

I swear by Apollo Physician and Asclepios and Hygeia and Panacea and all the gods and goddesses, making them my witnesses, that I will fulfill according to my ability and judgement this oath and covenant:

To hold him who has taught me this art as equal to my parents and to live my life in partnership with him, and if he is in need of money to give him a share of mine, and to regard his offspring as equal to my brothers in male lineage and to team them this art - if they desire to learn it - without fee and convenant; to give a share of precepts and oral instruction and all the other learning to my sons and to the sons of him who has instructed me and to pupils who have signed the covenant and have taken an oath according to the medical law, but to no one else.

I will apply dietetic measures for the benefit of the sick according to my ability and judgement; I will keep them from harm and injustice.

I will neither give a deadly drug to anybody if asked for it, nor will I make a suggestion to this effect. Similarly, I will not give to a woman an abortive remedy. In purity and holiness I will guard my life and my art.

I will not use the knife, not even on sufferers of the stone, but will withdraw in favor of such men as are engaged in this work.

Whatever houses I may visit, I will come for the benefit of the sick, remaining free of all intentional injustice, of all mischief, and in particular of sexual relations with both female and male persons, be they free or slaves.

What I may see or hear in the course of treatment or even outside the treatment in regard to the life of men, which on no account one must spread abroad, I will keep to myself, holding such things shameful to be spoken about.

If I fulfill this oath and do not violate it, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and art, being honored with fame among all men for all time to come; if I transgress it and swear falsely, may the opposite of all this be my lot.

The Office of the Dean and
The Offices of the Assistant Deans For Basic and Clinical Sciences

Congratulate you upon your graduation from Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine. This achievement has involved your willingness to travel a long and difficult road for the past four years. We are proud of your intelligence, your tenacity and above all your commitment to the osteopathic profession.

You have entered a demanding professional community that will offer you great opportunities to contribute to service, research and education. We are confident in our hopes for your future - a future full of work and reward - and proud of the strength of character that you have demonstrated and will continue to demonstrate.
